Chris Banaszak has nearly three decades of experience in labor and employment law and litigation. His accumulated knowledge and experience help him efficiently identify issues, provide solutions and address problems before they arise. He enjoys helping others resolve conflicts advantageously so they can focus on what matters most: their business.

Chris represents clients with a variety of legal matters including harassment, retaliation, wage and hour, ERISA and FMLA matters, wrongful discharge, breach of contract, whistleblower, employment discrimination, unemployment compensation, worker's compensation and employee health and safety disputes, with a particular emphasis on matters involving non-compete agreements, unfair competition, trade secrets, shareholder dispute, breach of fiduciary duty and duty of loyalty matters.

In cases that move to litigation, Chris is relentless in pursuing his clients' goals and his clients appreciate his communicative nature throughout the process. He applies his analytical skills to dissect complex issues and move toward resolution. Chris has successfully tried numerous cases, including cases involving multimillion dollar claims. He is noted for his rational approach and partners with clients on a shared vision of what they can accomplish together.

Chris believes strongly in supporting his local community and is involved with The Cathedral Center, which provides safe environments for women and families while working to end homelessness. He is also affiliated with the Malaika Early Learning Center, which works with families to establish strong academic, social and emotional foundations for Milwaukee's economically disadvantaged children.

Chris is an ardent Green Bay Packers football fan and is a season ticket holder. He also enjoys travel.
