Seeing the positive impact his clients make in their communities is the most rewarding aspect of Frank Pitsoulakis' work as a shareholder in Reinhart's Real Estate Practice. He provides legal counsel in the leasing, development, acquisition and disposition of commercial real estate with a particular focus on affordable housing and low-income housing tax credit projects. Frank reviews and analyzes financing documents, leases, construction contracts and architectural agreements and helps clients negotiate purchase transactions. These projects often involve a variety of lenders and stakeholders, and Frank is skilled at balancing their needs, reconciling competing concerns and seeing possibilities for alignment.

Before joining Reinhart, Frank spent nearly a decade as in-house counsel for a real estate management and development company. Due to this experience, he has a keen understanding of the client perspective and how to collaborate for success.

Frank's clients appreciate his diligence, responsiveness and practical solutions. He takes the time to learn about each client's unique goals and enjoys working as a team to achieve notable outcomes.

Away from the office, Frank spends time with his family and enjoys fishing.
