

Greg Monday Discusses the Importance of Medical Power of Attorney Documents in 'In Business Madison' Interview

As important as medical power of attorney documents are for individuals, they are even more important to business owners. The people who run Madison businesses should draft a tailored POA for health care when they discuss business succession planning, and it should identify one person — with at least one backup — who they trust to carry out their wishes, says Reinhart's Greg Monday, in an interview with In Business Madison Magazine.

"If you are in a position of authority in a business, it's important to have an updated power of attorney for health care, partly so that if you have a health event that affects your ability to make decisions or perform your duties, there are individuals who can confer with doctors to determine whether you are disabled and unable to perform," says Monday.

The full article, on the ibmadison.com website, discusses three business cases for getting things in order beforehand »

These materials provide general information which does not constitute legal or tax advice and should not be relied upon as such. Particular facts or future developments in the law may affect the topic(s) addressed within these materials. Always consult with a lawyer about your particular circumstances before acting on any information presented in these materials because it may not be applicable to you or your situation. Providing these materials to you does not create an attorney/client relationship. You should not provide confidential information to us until Reinhart agrees to represent you.

POSTED:

Aug 9, 2016

RELATED PRACTICES:

Trusts and Estates

<https://www.reinhartlaw.com/practices/trusts-and-estates>

RELATED SERVICES:

Succession Planning

<https://www.reinhartlaw.com/services/succession-planning>

RELATED PEOPLE:

Gregory F. Monday

<https://www.reinhartlaw.com/people/gregory-monday>