Liam Conrad is an associate in Reinhart's Real Estate Practice. He is dedicated to assisting his clients in navigating the complexities of real estate developments, ensuring they maximize available resources while adhering to regulatory requirements. With meticulous attention to detail and strong communication skills, Liam provides consistent, individualized legal counsel that aligns perfectly with his clients' goals.

Before joining Reinhart, while working at the law clinic at Iowa Law, Liam represented local government in various legal issues related to property development. His commitment to excellence in client service is evident in his ability to listen carefully and translate his client's ambitions into decisive action.

Liam's scholarly contributions to the field, including published articles on critical real estate issues, reflect his deep understanding of the legal landscape and his passion for addressing complex challenges. His analytical mindset and resourceful approach empower him to engage effectively with clients and stakeholders, fostering collaborative relationships that drive projects forward.

Outside of his legal practice, Liam enjoys downhill skiing, reading and traveling abroad.
