Peter J. Soukenik is an attorney in Reinhart's Corporate Law Practice, providing a wide range of clients with practical and creative legal solutions in the areas of mergers and acquisitions and general corporate law matters.

He believes that the key to positive results is careful preparation. Peter carries this commitment forward when assessing and mitigating risk in all transactions, helping to ensure success in each project. This requires a clear understanding of his client's legal needs and goals, and so he regularly provides deliberate and thoughtful research to uncover potential issues that may arise and offers clear counsel on the appropriate response to each. In this, he is a trusted and collaborative partner to his clients and team.

Peter attributes his successes in corporate law to dedicated, hard work and believes his master's in business administration positions him to better understand the scope and considerations of business matters and financial documents. He views every day as a chance to learn something new and to hone his skillset, tapping into the wide Reinhart knowledge base.

Prior to joining the firm, Peter served as a law clerk at a Chicago-based law firm. Before that, he gained business experience while working as a consultant for technologies in the transportation space and as an Acquisitions and Integrations Manager at a premier transportation firm based in the United Kingdom.

Outside his time at Reinhart, Peter enjoys watching sports, playing golf and rooting for the Los Angeles Rams.
