Woomin Kang is a shareholder in Reinhart's Institutional Investor Services Practice, where she advises clients in making commitments to private equity funds and hedge funds. She also counsels on other investment-related matters, such as co-investment transactions and fund-of-one formation. Woomin represents a wide range of clients from government pension plans to overseas insurance companies. Throughout her career, she has worked with numerous funds and fund managers, which has given her a deep understanding of industry standards and best practices.

Clients appreciate Woomin's detail-oriented work style and big-picture vision, which enables her to negotiate effectively and come up with creative solutions that benefit all parties involved in a transaction. Her unwavering work ethic, meticulousness and collaborative approach make her a valuable asset to both the firm and those she serves.
